DETAILED ACTION and ALLOWANCE

1. Claims 1 and 2 have been examined and allowed.

Priority

2. Acknowledgment is made of applicant's claim for foreign priority under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d). The certified copy has been filed and applicants have been afforded a priority date of March 15, 2000.

Information Disclosure Statement

3. The information disclosure statement (IDS) submitted on March 15, 2001 has been considered by the examiner. Further, since the IDS included the German language version of the document, the Examiner uncovered U.S. Patent 6,416,017 issued on July 9, 2002 that corresponds to DE 198 41632, the only reference cited in the IDS. This was used as a complete translation of the document for purposes of reviewing the reference for its relevance to the instant claimed invention.

Drawings

4. Formal drawings are required in this application because the Applicant filed the instant case with hand drawn informal drawings that were useful for examining but are not acceptable for printing. Applicant is advised to employ the services of a competent patent draftsman outside the Office, as the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office no longer prepares new drawings. The formal drawings are required in reply to the Notice of Allowance to avoid abandonment of the application.

Reasons for Allowance

5 The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

6. The prior art of record does not expressly teach or render obvious the claimed invention as recited in the methodology of claim 1. Specifically the allowable subject matter resides in the limitations, as recited in the context of claim 1, directed to the process for designing a flight controller by determining a damping and phase delay for each excitation frequency first for a rigid airplane and then for an elastic airplane including adapting the flight controller such that structural responses to each excitation frequency for both the rigid airplane and the elastic airplane in an open control circuit outside of two design fields, applicable to the elastic airplane are located around instability points in a data field comprising the damping and phase delay where the design of the elastic airplane allows damping exceeding -6 db between the phase delays of -270 degrees and -495 degrees. The phrase "the design of the elastic airplane " including "the design of" has been interpreted as not having improper antecedence since this is inferentially referring to the prior elastic airplane that is clearly a within the design and for the design of the flight control, inclusive of this elastic airplane. The phrase "adapting the flight controller such that" has been interpreted as using known design tools by persons of ordinary skill level to provide modifications or adaptations to the flight controller to accommodate for structural responses to excitation frequencies for both rigid and elastic airplanes, based upon the limitations that follow. The term "acts" has been interpreted as "steps". While the language of claims does not flow well, one of ordinary skill level would, in light of the teachings of the specification, should understand the metes and bounds of the claims.

Though the prior art of record expressly teaches the use of both rigid and elastic airplane modeling/designs for flight controls, the prior art does not explicitly teach the exacting steps with bounded ranges as recited in the independent claim 1. "A claim is anticipated only if each and every element as set forth in the claim is found, either expressly or inherently described, in a single prior art reference." Verdegaal Bros. v. Union Oil Co. of California, 814 F.2d 628, 631, 2 USPQ2d 1051, 1053 (Fed. Cir. 1987). "The identical invention must be shown in as complete detail as is contained in the ... claim." Richardson v. Suzuki Motor Co., 868 F.2d 1226, 1236, 9 USPQ2d 1913, 1920 (Fed. Cir. 1989). The elements must be arranged as required by the claim, but this is not an ipsissimis verbis test, i.e., identity of terminology is not required. In re Bond, 910 F.2d 831, 15 USPQ2d 1566 (Fed. Cir. 1990). The general concepts are taught and known throughout the prior art, however, the combined acts of the designing a flight controller having the design of the elastic airplane allows damping exceeding -6 db between the phase delays of -270 degrees and -495 degrees, was not uncovered.

Motivation to combine the teachings of the prior art, including that which would have been known to one with an ordinary level of skill in this art, was not uncovered so as to render the claimed invention obvious.

Dependent claim 2 is allowable as they depend on an allowed independent claims.

Conclusion

7. Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
